

WISCONSIN
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

PRIM&R Workshop

March 1, 2017

Alan Rubel, J.D., Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Information School, Legal Studies Program
Faculty Affiliate, Law School
arubel@wisc.edu

- Consequentialist conceptions
 - Aggregate, welfarist
 - Consider: harms from information use or abuse, negative effects from concerns about privacy loss
- Autonomy (also eudaeonist) views
 - People can formulate own values, and act accordingly as they see fit
 - Consider: people value privacy independently of its benefit, people may alter decisions based on valuing privacy

- Autonomy and understanding of status
 - Ability to act on values as one sees fit, distinct from, versus
 - Awareness of how one fares with respect to important aspects of one's life
- Fairness and distributions
 - Subjects versus beneficiaries of information sharing
- Expectations
 - May be absent, may be manipulated, may not square with interests, may not square with considered judgments

